

New Employees Obligations

Here's a detailed overview of the legal obligations for new employees:

1. Provide Accurate Information:

- Personal Details: Ensure that personal information, such as contact details and emergency contacts, is accurate and up-to-date.
- Tax and Superannuation: Provide a valid tax file number and complete necessary forms for superannuation contributions, ensuring correct processing.

2. Adhere to Employment Contract:

- Job Duties: Perform the tasks and responsibilities outlined in the employment contract diligently and to the best of your ability.
- Terms and Conditions: Comply with the agreed terms, including work hours, leave entitlements, and any probationary period conditions.

3. Workplace Health and Safety (WHS):

- Safety Protocols: Follow all WHS guidelines and use safety equipment as required to ensure personal and coworker safety.
- Incident Reporting: Promptly report any workplace hazards, injuries, or unsafe practices to supervisors to prevent accidents.

4. Abide by Company Policies:

- Conduct and Behaviour: Adhere to policies regarding professional conduct, including dress code, punctuality, and workplace behaviour.
- Anti-Discrimination: Respect and follow anti-discrimination and harassment policies to maintain an inclusive and respectful workplace.

5. Respect Confidentiality:

- Sensitive Information: Protect and maintain the confidentiality of any proprietary or sensitive information accessed during employment.
- Data Protection: Ensure compliance with data protection policies, especially when handling personal or confidential data.

6. Continuous Learning and Compliance:

- Training and Development: Participate in any required training programs to stay updated on job skills and compliance requirements.
- Legal and Ethical Standards: Stay informed about relevant legal and ethical standards and ensure personal conduct aligns with these expectations.

By fulfilling these obligations, employees help create a compliant, productive, and harmonious workplace environment.